ingly. Otherwise Morse could have staged a legal fight.

He Notifies Daugherty

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (By The Associated Press).—Charles W. Morse, shipbuilder and financier, who sailed for France a few days before it became publicly known that his ship contracts were to be made subject to grand jury inquiry, notified Attorney General Daugherty late to-day that he would return to the United States, sailing from Havre Monday night.

This message was in reply to one sent him to-day by Attorney General Daugherty directing him to return Monday. The Attorney General at the same time sent a cablegram to the American Embassy at Paris requesting that steps be taken to bring about the return of Morse on the steamer Paris.

Mrs. Morse sent this cablegram:

"Will sail Monday night."

"C. W. MORSE."

Mr. Daugherty's cablegram to Morse follows:

"You are directed and required to return on Paris, sailing December 5."

"Daugherty, Attorney General."

The Attorney General's cable was in reply to a cable from Morse, asking that he be permitted to remain abroad for medical treatment until January 5 and requesting that the American Embassy be notified to that effect.

The Attorney General's cable to the American Embassy at Paris read:

"Please direct and require Morse to return on Paris, sailing December 5."

"Daugherty, Attorney General."

Makes Explanations

HAVRE, Dec. 3 (By The Associated Press).—Charles W. Morse expressed disbelief in reports that he had been indicted, received here in Washington dispatches.

"The report of my indictment in connection with the Tunis ship deal," he told the correspondent, "must be unfounded, as I was indicted on that charge more than a year ago in New York State and the indictment was quashed at the request of the Shipping Board."

(Mr. Morse was indicted May 3, 1920, on a charge that, through an agent, he had sold the steamer John G. McCulloch to the government of Tunis in violation of the law prohibiting sale of a ship registered under the American laws to any one not a citizen of the United States without the Shipping Board's permission.)

"Concerning the reports of an indictment charging padding of payrolls at our Groton, Conn., shipyard, this is also impossible, as full investigation was made by government officials who reported that there was no padding of payrolls at Groton. Even had there been padding, inasmuch as our contracts with the Shipping Board all provided for the delivery of a certain tonnage at so much per ton, the government had no concern beyond the fulfillment of our contracts, according to the stipulated terms."

inner cabinet conferred together, and for two hours, between 5 and 7, the cabinet and all the plenipotentiaries met.

There is not the slightest inkling of the course of the discussion or the decision of the cabinet, but the fact that all the members of the delegation are returning to London is regarded generally as a hopeful sign.

Ulster Won't Surrender Parliament

BELFAST, Dec. 3 (By The Associated Press).—Under no circumstances will Ulster give up her northern Parliament for an all-Ireland legislature, declared John Miller Andrews, Minister of Labor in the Ulster Cabinet, to-day.

"On behalf of the northern government I tell you," he asserted in an address at Killiney, County Down, "that under no circumstances are we prepared to give up our Parliament or to agree to enter an all-Ireland one, dominated as it undoubtedly would be by men who are avowedly enemies of Great Britain, whose aims are not our aims, whose ways are not our ways."

"Let our opponents," he said, "show a spirit of reasonableness and a real desire for peace, as we have done, and we are prepared that our Parliament should work with them for the prosperity of Ireland as a whole, each admitting the supremacy of the mother Parliament and each owing allegiance to the same honored king."

Arrival of Irish Delegates Delayed When Ship Sinks a Schooner: Three Men Lost

From The Tribune's European Bureau. Copyright, 1921, New York Tribune Inc.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—Michael Collins, commander of the Irish republican army, volunteered to assist in manning the lifeboats early this morning when the mailboat Cambria, on which he and others members of the Irish peace delegation were traveling to Dublin, ran down and sank the schooner James Tyrell, of Arklow, causing the death of three of the schooner's crew.

This adventurous prelude to the arrival of Collins, George Gavan Duffy, Erskine Childers and other Sinn Fein officials, occurred in the darkness between 3 and 4 o'clock this morning, less than ten minutes after the Cambria, carrying 274 passengers and the mails, left the North Wales port of Holyhead. The Cambria, which was making her maiden trip, was speeding at the rate of twenty-seven knots off North Stack light when it struck the schooner and cut it in two. The smaller vessel sank within a few minutes.

The skipper and three of the crew jumped into the water as the after part of the schooner sank and were picked up by a lifeboat from the Cambria, but although the mailboat searched the area for two hours before putting back to Holyhead, no trace was found of the missing mate, cook and deckhand.

When the Cambria shivered from the shock of the collision, Collins and his colleagues hurried to the deck. There was no panic on the mailboat, which was soon seen to be in no danger. Collins assisted to lower the starboard lifeboat and then volunteered to go out with the port boat, which, however, was manned without his assistance by members of the crew. When two of the rescued men were brought aboard the steamship in a state of collapse, Collins gave up his cabin for their accommodation.

The Cambria put back to Holyhead to be dry-docked for examination, though the damage was thought to be slight. The passengers were transferred to the Hibernia which reached Dublin more than four hours after the time scheduled for the Irish delegates to arrive. Collins and his companions motored to Dublin, however, and arrived at the Mansion House in time for a meeting of the Dail Eireann Cabinet presided over by Eamon de Valera, who had traveled up from Clare.

County Clerk-Elect Refuses To Tolerate Raise in Salary

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 3.—Arthur R. Atkinson, Republican County Clerk-elect, has notified the Supervisors that he will not accept a salary increase during his term of office. The committee had before it a proposal to raise Mr. Atkinson's pay from $5,000 to $5,500 next year and to $6,000 in 1923. "I was elected on a basis of $5,000 a year and will abide by that," Mr. Atkinson declared.

His artist foster son was a well-known figure in the neighborhood, and often wandered over the countryside with his sketching materials.

It struck Chief Ryne that the description given by the two women of their assailant might answer very well for young Alexander MacArthur. Further inquiries convinced him that this was a clew worth following, and he obtained a warrant for the young man's arrest.

Alexander MacArthur was no longer in New Jersey, however, and as the season advanced it became evident to Chief Ryne that there was little likelihood of his resuming his sketching trips there. He communicated, therefore, with the New York police.

Detectives Cornell, Gegan and Barth set out to hunt for MacArthur and found the search not difficult, as the young man was listed in the Social Register and his address given.

MacArthur said that he went to Spartanburg with the 106th Machine Gun Battalion of the 27th Division, but had received an honorable discharge after six months for physical disability.

Captain Carey who has a stenographic record of the statement made by MacArthur, said that every detail of it would be submitted to close examination.

"It is my intention," he said, "to investigate every statement made by MacArthur to me. I intend to go into this matter in detail."

Mother Charges German Plot

Mrs. MacArthur, the young man's foster mother, attributed his arrest to a German plot to interfere with a campaign of the Circle La Rochambeau to obtain clothes for French and American war veterans.

A WONDERFUL TRIBUTE TO The DUO-ART Reproducing Piano

THE two greatest Musical Conservatories of England, The Royal College of Music and The Royal Academy of Music, have installed Duo-Art Reproducing Pianos and are using them to assist in teaching their pupils pianistic interpretation.

Recognition from those High in Authority

The adoption of the Reproducing Piano by these eminent and conservative institutions is an event of great interest and obvious significance. It is the aim and endeavor of the faculty of a great College of Music to surround its students with only those influences that shall develop an understanding and appreciation of all that is best in Musical Art. It is upon the success of these influences, plus the ability of its instructors, that the reputation of these seats of learning is built and maintained. It is easy to understand, therefore, how jealously these influences are guarded.

Duo-Art Supremacy

That in each instance it was the Duo-Art Reproducing Piano which was selected is a supreme testimonial to the superiority of that instrument. The two attributes of the Duo-Art Piano which qualified it for selection over all similar instruments were, first, the superiority of its playing, and second, the fact that a majority of the World's greatest Pianists are now making records for it exclusively.

The Faculty of these Conservatories are men whose education and occupation qualify them as the most critical and capable judges of piano playing it would be possible to find. Their selection, therefore, of the Duo-Art Piano, added to the testimony of a majority of the world's greatest musicians, establishes the supremacy of that instrument beyond reasonable contention.
